

Thank you is a concept understood universally as a means of showing appreciation. Here are a few ways to say thank you in different languages:

- Chinese (Cantonese) – do jeh
- French – merci
- German – danke
- Spanish – gracias

No matter what language they speak, your recipient will understand your gratitude when you send a great thank you gift from All About Gifts & Baskets!

The Value of Appreciation

From the time I can remember it was instilled in me to appreciate everything and anything that someone gave me or did for me. As a little girl I remember being taught manners.

"Thank you" was one of my most used phrases and still is to this day.

However, "Thank You" is a phrase that is so well-used and is so automatically uttered that it can become unheard by the giver. As a small child, I would say it because I was told I must say it therefore, it was an automatic response not a response of genuine appreciation.

As I grew older, I learned the value of appreciation and that no deed should go unnoticed. I also learned that half the joy of receiving is giving a small token of appreciation, whether it be sending a thank you card or a thank you gift. I learned that "thank you" is only a conversational expression of gratitude and that the most rewarding way of thanking someone is giving something in return.

Have you ever given a gift or did a deed for someone and they said "thank you"? How quickly did you forget those words?

"Online shopping is a diamond in the rough. The longer someone has been online is one of the best predictors of whether they'll shop online or not."

Still, online retail sales figures add up to only a fraction of figures for offline sales. This year, analysts expect online figures to reach just 3 percent of the $217.4 billion seen in offline sales, according to the National Retail Federation. Online figures are up about 1 percentage point from last year, compared with an expected increase of about 5.7 percent in offline sales, according to the NRF.

Taking the time to sit and write a simple thank you card or send a thank you gift goes a long way. It is one of the most valuable things you can do to show your appreciation and delight to the special someone who has taken time to show their thoughtfulness.

We lead busy lives and we tend to forget the small things in life that make a person feel special and appreciated. Show your gratitude and take the time to uplift the spirit of the giver. Be selfless and take some time in your busy day to sincerely thank someone.
